Cricket

The origins of Cricket

Cricket had started as a child's game in the 16th century in the sheep grazing lands of South East England. A stick and a ball of wool were used as play equipment.

Gradually, men began to play it and used a rick, which is a stick in Old English and a cryce, which means a crutch. Cricket Laws were invented in 1788 and the first cricket team was the MCC Marylebone Cricket Club who played at the Lords Ground in 1793.

With the expansion of the British Empire, cricket was played across the world in Britain's former colonies, that now compose the Commonwealth countries.
